ABSTRACT

The tables in this publication summarize learning assistance/tutorial (LAT) programs and services, LAT personnel information, and resources and expenditures for LAT programs in California colleges and universities as of 1997-98. Highlights include: (1) 78 colleges and universities in California indicated that in the year ending June 30, 1998, they had an organized LAT program; five institutions, including three community colleges, indicated that they did not have one; (2) the majority of the programs in the state are centralized; only 17 are decentralized; (3) 40 of the 64 community college programs are housed in the Academic Affairs and Services Development; (4) LAT programs in community colleges are supervised predominately by faculty; (5) program components predominating in the community college LAT programs are tutoring, study skills, math programs, study skills and writing programs; (6) counseling is offered by less than one-third of the responding colleges; (7) workshops, seminars and formal classes are the primary methods of tutor training; (8) LAT programs in 11 of the responding community colleges are certified by the College Reading and Learning Assistance Association; and (9) the majority of the colleges use the California Tutor Project for tutor training. California College and Universities
Learning Assistance/Tutorial Data Survey

ISSUE: Higher educational institutions in California were unable to ascertain the status of learning assistance and or tutorial programs, document their contributions to student success and to data sufficient in scope to evaluate and improve tutorial and learning assistance programs.

BACKGROUND:
In October 1997, the community college Chancellor's Office worked in conjunction with the Association of California College Tutorial and Learning Assistance to establish an ad hoc committee to develop an instrument to gather data on the Tutorial and Learning Assistance Programs in the State's public and private colleges and universities.

This intersegmental ad hoc committee worked within the framework of the community college Library and Learning Resources Data Program to:

1. Identify the data elements needed to assess the condition of the tutorial; and learning assistance programs in California's colleges,
2. Develop a data survey; and
3. Develop a data analysis plan.

The work of the committee was presented to the Chancellor's Office, Advisory Committee, Library and Learning Resources Programs and at the 1998 Annual Conference of the Association of California College Tutoring and Learning Assistance. The committee was composed of tutoring and learning assistance personnel from throughout the State.

The committee was composed of tutorial and learning assistance personnel from throughout the State higher education community. The committee members were:

Dorothy Williams, Antelope Valley College
Billie Jackson, California State University, Chico
Pat Cole, Point Loma Nazarene University
Kevin O'Connor, Loyola Marymount University
Yvonne Maller, Sacramento City College
Aaron Hatch, Cypress College
Wandra Williams, Laney College
Rae McCormick, Occidental College
Paul Stark, Chancellor's Office
Carolyn F. Norman, Chancellor's Office

Committee co-chairs are Yvonne Maller and Carolyn F. Norman.

The work of the committee was previously disseminated on the ccc-lib-lrc-list@cerritos.edu and the ccc-tutoring-lac-list@cerritos.edu and presented at conferences and regional meetings and discussed with the Library and Learning Resources Program Advisory Committee.

The listservs mentioned above are no longer operational. The new list for the community college library and learning resources programs is ccc-lib-lrc@list.bctv.net.

ANALYSIS

Instrumentation and Procedures

The Learning Assistance/Tutorial Data Survey instrument was modeled after similar survey instruments including the U.S. Department of Education's Integrated Postsecondary Education Data Survey (IPEDS). Specific objectives that guided survey development were:

- To develop and implement a uniform data collection instrument and infrastructure to improve data collection and analysis for California's institution of higher education;
- Acceptance of the definition of Learning Assistance as defined by the National Association of Developmental Educators
- To develop the foundation for ongoing local and statewide comparison, systemwide planning and decision-making;
- That improved data leads to better information for the development of policy and guidelines;
- That better policy and guidelines lead to better and improved programs;
- That better and improved programs lead to improved student outcomes and successes;
- That improved student outcomes, in the aggregate, increases assurance that higher educational institutions will achieve the mission and goals outlined in each segments policy documents; and
- To identify the diversity of resources, programs and services provided by California's colleges and universities.

Based on these objectives, the survey instrument was further organized along seven components including:

A. General Institution Information
B. General Learning Assistance/Tutorial Program Information
C. Program Supervision/Management
D. Learning Assistance Programs Offered to Students
E. General Comments on Learning Assistance/Tutorial Center (Program)

Scope.
In administering the California College and Universities Learning Assistance/Tutorial Data Survey, an effort was made to reach all 209 public and private 2-year and 4-year Institutions of higher education in the State of California. The survey instrument was distributed to the colleges and universities in the fall of 1998, 1999 and 2000 with a requested return within two months.

The National Association of Developmental Educators defines Learning Assistance Programs as:

> "1. Supportive activities, supplementary to the regular curriculum, that promote the understanding, learning and remembering of new knowledge, remediation for prescribed entry and exit levels of academic proficiency, and the development of new skills.
>
> 2. Programs which include instruction and activities for developing learning skills, study skills, reading, mathematics, writing, critical thinking problem solving. Subject matter tutoring, graduate exam preparation courses and time management workshops may also be offered (Materniak & Williams, 1987).
>
> 3. Programs that enable students to develop the attitudes and skills that are required for the successful achievement of their academic goals. These programs are based on research findings in the areas of teaching, learning and human development.
>
> Learning Assistance Center
>
> 1. (a) An organized, multifaceted program providing comprehensive academic enhancement activities outside of the traditional classroom setting to the entire college community;
>
> (b) A centralized area wherein tutorial and study skills assistance is provided.
>
> 2. A program on campus which offers help to any student experiencing academic difficulties. Assistance is usually individualized but can be either remedial or developmental in nature; usually ancillary to a remedial and/or development program or course."

Data Collection and Analysis

The California College and Universities Learning Assistance/Tutorial Data Survey are collected and processed by the Library and Learning Resources Program within the Chancellor's Office, California Community Colleges. A relational file manager program, Nutshell Plus II, was selected as the tool to access, store, and manipulate the data.

At this time data edits and verifications are made on the appearance of inconsistency, summations and range checks. In additional, no efforts were made to impute data.

There are approximately 2000 data elements in the Learning Assistance/Tutorial Database. Twenty-four report formats have been developed from this database. The database also includes information acquired from other data sources within the Chancellor's Office, California Community Colleges and from the California Postsecondary Education Institution (CPEC). Based on the analysis plan developed by the ad hoc committee and a review of the literature, the data was organized into twenty-five layouts/report formats for review. The formats are depicted in Table 1.

The analysis plan incorporates the data into a descriptive report of the Learning Assistance Programs in California Colleges. It outlines the report format, identifies the issues to be addressed, formulates the questions to be answered and clusters the variables. A copy of the Analysis Plan: Descriptive Report of the Learning Assistance Programs in California Community Colleges, 1997-98 is included in the appendix.

Response Rate
Among the 209 institutions that were the focus of this study the overall response rate was 38% percent. Table 2 present further information on response rates for the survey administered in 1997-98. The rows of the table present the number of academic institutions, and the number of and percentage of respondents and non-respondents at the state level. A modest follow-up attempt was made on non-respondents.

Table 2

Institution Type	Total Number of Institutions	Respondents/Non-Respondents,1998	Percentage of Participation,1998
2-year public colleges	107	64/43	59.8%
2-year private colleges
California State Universities	23	9/14	39%
University of California	9	2/7	22%
Private 4 year College and Universities	70	5/65	7%
Total	209	80/129	38.2%

The response rate for 1998-99 was not an acceptable return and a more aggressive follow-up program is being implemented before the data will be released.

CONCLUSION:

The tables in this publication summarize learning assistance and or tutorial programs and services, learning assistance/tutorial personnel, resources and expenditures for Learning Assistance/Tutorial Programs in the California Colleges and Universities Colleges, as of 1997-98. Seventy-eight colleges and universities in the State indicated that in the year ending June 30, 1998 that they had an organized Learning Assistance/Tutorial Program. Five institutions including three community colleges indicated that their institutions did not have an organized learning assistance/tutorial program.

The majority of the programs in the State are centralized and seventeen are decentralized. Forty community colleges are housed in the Academic Affairs/Instructional Support administrative area and seventeen are in the Student Affairs/Services Development. Three colleges indicated that they straddle both administrative areas. Learning Assistance/Tutorial Programs in community colleges are supervised predominately by faculty. Supervision in the responding California State Universities, the University of California and private postsecondary institutions is by non-faculty.

There are approximately 91 full-time faculty employed in the responding colleges. Forty-four persons are full-time faculty and have ten-month contracts. There is an equal number of faculty employed part-time on nine month contracts. The majority of persons employed in the college system's learning assistance/tutorial programs are part-time.

Program components predominate in the community college learning assistance programs are tutoring, study skills, math programs, study skills and writing programs. Counseling is offered by less that 1/3 of the responding colleges.

Expenditures by the responding community colleges are approximately $11,1119,358. This includes non-student employees, student employees, instructional materials, equipment and furniture, supplies/other, professional development and travel.

Students and faculty were able to access the State's Learning Assistance/Tutorial Programs for an annual total of 4,108 hours. Divided by a 40-hour instructional WSCH or faculty load, this equates to 102 sections. Assume equity across the responding 84 colleges, this is 13 3-unit sections or courses per campus or the equivalent of 3 full-time faculty.

Workshops, seminars and formal classes are the primary methods of tutor training. Learning Assistance programs in eleven of the responding community colleges are certified by the College Reading and Learning Assistance (CRLA) Association. One college is CRLA certified at levels 1,2 and 3. Several colleges are certified at multiple CRLA levels. Three are certified at level three and four are certified at level one.

The majority of the colleges use the California Tutor Project for tutor training. The California Tutor Project was funded in part by the Fund for Instructional Improvement Program (FII) in 1991-2. This program is administered by the Chancellor's Office, California Community Colleges.

Access hours ranged from a low of 32 to a high of 75 and a statewide average of 52.66 hours per week.

RECOMMENDATIONS: There are two recommendations for the California College and Universities Learning Assistance/Tutorial Data Survey Program. They are to work with the Association of California College Tutorial and Learning Assistance:

1. To establish an ad hoc committee to review and make recommendations to the current California College and Universities Learning Assistance/Tutorial Data Survey by August 2001, and
2. To establish an ad hoc committee to review and make recommendations for the California College and Universities Learning Assistance/Tutorial Data Statistical Pilot Report, 1997 by August 2001.

The recommendations will be brought to the advisory committee in fall 2001.
